

Beyond Sticks and Carrots

What to do when your young child doesn't do what you want

Have you tried 'everything'? Are you still looking for creative ways to 'reach' your young child? Learn how to develop a communication style that makes for fewer conflicts and easier resolution in your interactions in the early childhood years. See how to go beyond negotiations, threats and bribery. The basic theme is learning how to become a more conscious parent. Steve will offer suggestions so you will go home with new tools for your life with young children, and more patience and calm to deal with the stressful situations that may arise.

Early childhood consultant and writer Stephen Spitalny offers inspiring lectures, workshops and mentoring to teachers and parents around the world. Steve is a father and grandfather, and was a kindergarten teacher at the Santa Cruz (California) Waldorf School for 24 years. Steve's mixed-age kindergarten included children from 3-years-old until they were ready for first grade. Since the mid-1990's, he has given workshops, lectures and courses on many themes for various institutions and groups throughout the world, from Switzerland to China, Indonesia, and Canada, as well as throughout the US. Steve currently serves on the faculty of WISC (Waldorf Institute of Southern California), was a former Board member of WECAN (Waldorf Early Childhood Association of North America) and former editor of Gateways, the bi-annual newsletter of WECAN. Visit his blog chamakanda.blogspot.com and his website chamakanda.com

Monday, November 6 at 6:00 pm

For Parent + Child, Preschool and Kindergarten families everywhere

Donations welcomed.

For more information please contact:
office@waldorfak.org or 333-9062

The Anchorage Waldorf School
3250 Baxter Road 99504
WaldorfAK.org

The Anchorage
Waldorf
School

Awakening Wonder