Dear Families,

As we launch into summer, I wanted to provide you with an update from our faculty in-service at the close of this school year, given all the oddities of closure this time around.

First and foremost, we appreciate your feedback in regard to distance learning. Since most parents found themselves with the near-impossible task of simultaneously working and teaching their children, teachers have acknowledged that our approach must differ should the need to teach remotely arise again. In response, we have drafted a plan that includes various learning models for the upcoming school year. As prevailing health conditions change, we will apply pertinent contingencies of the plan. What I can offer now is a peek into some of the knowns within our plan, namely, ideas that will stand.

We anticipate resuming on-site classes in the fall. Our campus layout, with separate classroom cottages, is well suited for social distancing. Our small class size grants teachers the freedom to innovate and to personalize instruction. To that end, we:

- will be prepared for three possible scenarios: on-site classes with advisories, on-site classes with mandates, and personalized distance learning. (The following colored text denotes the scenario(s) to which each applies.)
- are restructuring classroom spaces and rethinking activities to maintain health and safety as a priority.
- will adopt an Outdoor Learning program, applying ideas from both AWSNA and local outdoor educators, as the safest extensions of our curriculum. K-8 classes will largely meet in outdoor classrooms.

- have formed a relationship with the Anchorage Parks Foundation to engage our students in community service opportunities.
- are writing grants to either partner with organizations, or to help cover the costs of additional supplies and equipment.
- are devising procedures to keep shared spaces to a minimum, including bathrooms, and keeping students' belongings and materials in designated personal space areas. Specialty teachers will rotate to classroom spaces.
- will conduct in-vehicle screenings at drop-off. We will also designate a room for quarantining a child who gets sick during the day. Children who are sick or who display any Covid-19 symptoms must be kept home.
- will regularly prepare learning packets during distance learning. We will provide hard copy instructions and all necessary materials for families, designed to meet the needs of individual students and families.
- will choose electronic means only when deemed necessary or most efficient, and will limit their use. Instructional videos will be recorded, to allow families flexibility in accessing lessons.
- will arrange parent check-in times that take family routines into account.
- will help families maintain as much rhythm and balance as possible, setting parameters, etiquette, and expectations at the onset of distance learning.

If you would like a more detailed look at our current draft of the plan, please contact me. When it is finalized, all community members will be given a copy for reference.

Come the end of June, I will no longer serve as the school's Pedagogical Director. I am excited to teach our third and fourth graders, having already arranged trips and activities for them in the fall, masks and all.

Here's to a safe, healthy, and sunny summer!

Warmly,

Donna Levesque Pedagogical Director
